MERRIMACKAN

Nineteen Ninety-Four

These Are Times to Remember

THIS IS THE SEAL OF MERRIMACK COLLEGE

Its heraldry deeply symbolic...

Waving lines of blue and gold, representing the Merrimack River, Merru-asquam-ack, the place of swift water.... our college has already made tremendous strides in becoming a veritable fountainhead of Christian culture and advancement for all those entering its stream of activities.

"a trimount of the field charged with a cross fleurette," a part of the coat of arms of Archbishop Cushing, under whose patronage the College was established, representing Trimount, the original appellation of Boston.

a child's voice saying "tolle lege, tolle lege" (take up and read, take up and read) led to the conversion of St. Augustine and the dedication of his life to Christ.

"per scientiam ad sapientiam," (through knowledge to wisdom,) the ultimate purpose of Merrimack College . . . only through the valid combination of intellectual and spiritual knowledge of God and the world can we attain the fullness of wisdom.

College colors, blue for the fidelity of the Mother of God, and gold for the wisdom of the true Church form the chromatic basis of the seal of Merrimack College, devoted to Mary under the title of Our Mother of Good Counsel, and under her protection.

THANK YOU, FATHER

Dear Members of the Class of 1994:

Greetings on the occasion of the publication of your Yearbook. Your theme of "These are Times to Remember" is a fitting one. Your College years are special and unique in many ways. One of the most important things that happened during these years is the opportunity to make and nurture relationships.

At Merrimack, we encourage the building of community. A true community becomes a reality only when we are willing to open ourselves to others and share our thoughts, concerns and dreams. Hopefully, that has happened for you during your years at Merrimack and the things remembered are treasures that you will hold as precious for years to come. As in all things, I am sure that there have been times of challenge and disappointment. Also, there have been times of victory, joy and accomplishment. We need to remember all of our times for in each there is the opportunity to learn and grow. We need to be thankful for all of our times and accept them as gifts from God to be used to make this a better world.

It is my hope that as you live your life and embrace the future, you will remember the values that are an essential part of a Merrimack education: respect for the dignity of others; an openness to differences and an acceptance of diversity; a willingness to use your God-given talents to serve others; a thirst for justice and peace and a life-long yearning for truth and wisdom.

Congratulations on your accomplishments and my sincere best wishes for happiness and success in the future. Always remember Merrimack and the friends you have made here. Be generous in sharing your talents and, best of all, remember that you are supported by the love and strength of all the good people who are the Merrimack College Community.

Sincerely,

John E. Deegan, O.S.A.
Rev. John E. Deegan, O.S.A.
President

Augustinian apostolates are exterior activities flowing from a deep interior life, and they are at one and the same time personal and communal. The apostolate of the individual receives help and support from the Community. the Apostolate is an integral part of our religious life.

DEEGAN AND GOOD LUCK!!

Rev. John E. Deegan, O.S.A., President of Merrimack College since June of 1981, has been elected Prior Provincial of the Augustinian Friars, Providence of St. Thomas of Villanova.

The Province of St. Thomas of Villanova has approximately 300 religious men serving in apostolates located along the Eastern shore of The United States from Massachusetts to Florida. The Province also sponsors missionary activity in Japan and Peru.

In his new duties, beginning in June, Father Deegan will have the responsibility for the involvement of the Friars in some thirty parishes, two secondary schools, as well as Merrimack College, Villanova University, and the Washington (D. C.) Theological Union.

Expressing his genuine surprise at his election, Father Deegan said that he was humbled and honored by the action of his brother religious in electing him and pledged to do everything in his power to be worthy of their trust.

He asked for the prayers of all the wonderful people in the Merrimack College community and the Merrimack Valley as he concludes a wonderful chapter in his life and prepares for new responsibilities in the services of God.

Saint Augustine was a man whose soul would not rest easily. He constantly felt that he was reaching for something that was just too far away. Throughout his life, he tried his hand at teaching, monastic life, and active participation in his church with roles as a priest and bishop. Augustine was a talented man, but his soul-searching provided him with little peace in his early years.

He was born in 354 and lived until 430. During those years, he lived in Tagaste and Madaura in Africa, Carthage, and Rome. He taught grammar and rhetoric in Tagaste and Carthage, during which time he was born a son named Adeodatus. Already eager to find truth, he joined the Manichaean sect. They presented an image that the young Augustine had trouble accepting: a god that produced light and good, and another that produce dark and evil. The philosophical mind of this man was not yet satisfied.

Then Augustine moved on to Rome, where he was made a professor in Milan. At that time, the bishop of Milan was a man named Ambrose, whom the young searcher heard in a speech. The magnetism of the message of Ambrose did much to change Augustine’s mind about Catholicism. During an Easter vigil in 387, Ambrose baptized Augustine, making him an official Catholic. His journey back to Tagaste was marred by the death of his mother Monica; he sorrowed over the loss, but still he pressed on.

At a port near his home, called Hippo, he rose from a position of priest to auxiliary bishop, and then finally to bishop in 396. His original plan was to form a monastery where he and followers could get closer to God. His church duties pulled him off this course, but he did not complain, although ultimately he did build a monastery on land which was granted him by a Bishop named Valerius. Augustine’s duties as bishop were numerous: pastor of his parish, teacher, preacher, and presiding judge in a civil court. Indeed, this man was a tireless worker, and his example was spread by the many orders which sprang up in his name, like the one that is affiliated with Merrimack College. In history, these orders will be remembered for such things as preaching to the poor, and founding schools, orphanages, and hospitals.

Saint Augustine wrote much during his life. His book the Confessions, about his struggle to fulfill the Lord’s wishes, is perhaps the most commonly quoted. Other works of his were On the Trinity, Literal Commentary on Genesis, and City of God, the last book being about the wave of oppression against his faith by the Roman Empire. These pieces of remarkable literature form a foundation for much of Christian theology even today.

It is fitting to end with a passage from the Confessions:

“I snatched up the book (of the Apostle), opened it, and read in silence the passage upon which my eyes first fell: ‘Not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envying; but put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh in concupiscence.’ I had no wish to read further; there was no need to. For immediately I had reached the end of this sentence it was as though my heart was filled with a light of confidence and all the shadows of my doubt were swept away.”

Whether one agrees with his theology or not, Saint Augustine is to be admired for the comfort he found in his beliefs. Very few in history could say that.

SISTER ELAINE'S FUN PAGES

When Sister Elaine Palcari walks into a room, her smile is like sunshine and her laughter is contagious. Her friendly nature and sense of humor have won her a place in the hearts of the students here at Merrimack.

Sister Elaine has been a part of the Merrimack College Community for the past four years. As Acting Director of Campus Ministry, she has the opportunity to work closely with the students. She goes along on all of the M.O.R.E. Council retreats and on the annual alternative spring break trips coordinating by Merrimaction. According to Sister Elaine, participating in these trips has been especially rewarding. "It gives students an opportunity to look at the other side of life and broaden their education - to see where other people are at," she says.

She encourages students to learn outside the classroom as well as inside. She encourages positive involvement. And she practices what she preaches. Aside from all the Campus Ministry-run activities she is involved in, she also serves as the Class Advisor for the graduating class of 1994 and the moderator for Theta Pi Alpha sorority.

Sister Elaine is sincerely interested in the lives of the students here. She says that she "really enjoys working with the students at this time of their lives, when they are trying to claim who they are and what they want from life." She likes to hear from students - she even lives on campus, in G-tower. "G for God," as she reminds students, always encouraging them to stop by if they need someone to talk to - or they just want to say hello.

To students at Merrimack, Sister Elaine is a friendly face and a positive role model. For all you've done for us - and for all you continue to do for the college - We, the Class of 1994, thank you Sister Elaine!

THESE ARE TIMES TO REMEMBER...

ORIENTATION, FOR THE CLASS OF 1997...

Ken's Korner

Here I am, a senior majoring in Electrical Engineering and Editor-in-Chief of the Merrimackian, and during the entirety of the Fall 1993 semester I was out on co-op. What combination!

As I am writing this over Spring Break we are about to start the long, arduous process of organizing and laying out the 1994 Merrimackian. We have several late nights ahead of us, and we will be here well into the summer, as we have been every year since I joined the yearbook staff back in 1991.

I would like to thank Purdy-Vantin Studios for their help in getting all of the Orientation pictures, Senior Portraits, and the Sports candid shots taken. This has really eased the burden on our small photography staff. I'm sure we'll be calling on them again during Senior Week as well.

We wish Father Deegan success in his new role as Prior Provincial, and we wish the class of 1994 success in their future endeavors.

Working on the book is something which neither I, nor anyone else on the staff, will ever forget. I'm sure all of you have had some memorable times here at Merrimack College.

These are times to remember!

Ken at the Daytona 500...

These Are Times To Remember

As the senior class crosses the platform and receives diplomas, it will most likely be a time of reflection for those students. The impressions they will have concerning their lives here at Merrimack will no doubt be as diverse as the personalities of the graduates. Some will speak of the college experience as if it was the best time of their lives, and graduation will be an emotional time for them. Their tears will be regarded with confusion by others, who do not believe that the Merrimack experience was all that great, and these young adults will breathe a sigh of relief at grabbing the certificate. These people will be tripping over each other seeing who can be the fastest at getting out the door. In between these two extremes will be those who are indifferent in their memory of Merrimack, and hope that their future will bring more excitement.

For the first group I mentioned, there will be no doubt as to why they will remember Merrimack: it will be their moment in time to cherish forever. However, what about the rest? Why should they make any attempt at holding on to what they may regard as a mediocre experience and something that they would just as soon forget? The answer is simple. Whether any of us truly enjoyed membership in the Merrimack College community is not the issue; the important fact is that it is part of our lives. As such, Merrimack will always be part of our history. We learn from our experiences and trials in life, be they good or bad. I have at many times in my life tried to repudiate my past, and forget that it ever happened. It never has worked and it never will. And that is all for the best. If we would ever be successful at erasing parts of our lives that we did not enjoy, we would never grow as human beings. More importantly, someone who demolishes the residue of bad times will never learn to fully appreciate the value of good times.

So, these are times to remember. What specific occasions am I referring to? Well, they could be as grand as a first love at Merrimack, or even the discovery of someone with whom life will be shared forever. Perhaps they could be the classes where a student did superbly on presentations and received ample recognition from the teacher. Any trying moments that brought a floor in the dorms closer together in a bond of friendship also qualify. Whether the graduate has been a resident or a commuter, there has been some interaction with new people, and these new influences, whether remembered as concrete images of people or not, will be carried through later life. Unfortunately, bad recollections will also surface. Maybe a good friend or a close relative became ill. It is also possible that at some point in time, a student has embarrassed himself or herself at a party and will not want to face witnesses of that incident for some time to come. A particularly trying relationship that ended in a heartbreaking break-up also fit into this category. Nevertheless, such events will be just as much a part of the adult's story as any fond memories.

I personally believe that bad memories are not to be feared, but to be filed. When one faces a similar situation again in the future, one will have that reference point to be able to avoid further trouble. If that person simply forgets the bad experience, he or she will be running the risk of being hurt in the same manner. It has been said that we never learn from history. I agree with that, and I feel the reason that this is so is that we are too willing to eliminate thoughts of failure or disappointment. If we would acknowledge both the good and the bad sides of life, a true picture emerges, a picture which makes the people it touches whole and real.

In addition, let me make some more positive points. The next time a student sees a true and treasured friend, he or she would be wise to look that person in the eye and memorize the picture. As long as that memory remains, the graduate will never be alone. The next time an incident occurs which will be a fond memory, a student should take the time to talk about it with anyone who cares to listen. As long as good memories have not been kept silent, there will be room for hope for anyone who considered the issue. When those feelings are kept alongside the bad memories -if we still want to call them that- there will be balance.

I hope this has been as helpful in reading as it was in writing it. And please, hold close all your memories.

Two Sides To Learning

By Doug Farmer

Over the past year, I have been aware of two drastically different ideas about what is important for the students to take with them after Merrimack College. On the one hand, I am told that the primary purpose for being here is education, and that far outweighs anything else. Yet, there are also those who point out that the social atmosphere affects people as much as any book they have read in class. For this reason, I feel that the experience of college encompasses a lot more than most people realize. Although I have not seen and heard everything with which other students are familiar, I do have some idea of what we will remember in the future.

First of all, there are still aspects of our classes that we will recall. Perhaps a computer or business course someone had will have some direct relevance on what he or she will be doing in the job market. For those in liberal arts, it is generally more important to learn more and broaden minds than it is to have a direct use for a class. For me, a class like Latin American History gave me knowledge I was never even mildly exposed to in earlier schooling. Over and above any information we acquired, maybe we will remember when we shined in a class, did a good presentation, or embarrassed a teacher on some minor point. More than once, I have heard English majors praising a favorite book or play.

Before I move on to the social activities at Merrimack, I want to make one observation. "Socializing" does not necessarily mean alcohol. While it may be so for some people, it is not for others, and there are such things as responsible parties. I just thought I would mention this because, as those who were present at the commencement might recollect, the valedictory address brought up the word "sober" more than once. His point, I assume, was that a lot of fun activities went on that did not involve drinking. Nevertheless, to keep hammering away at this might have made the more puritanical minds in the audience suspicious.

One of the best parts of socializing at Merrimack is that there are many groups that allow people time to just talk. Examples would be the Argus, the Alternative Voice, the College-Wide Council, Greek Organizations, or even floors in dorms. The feeling one gets from sitting stiffly in a board meeting setting is far different than casually shooting the breeze with friends. Granted, there are those who feel student organizations should be more professional in their behavior. Alas, we are not professionals, and the casual atmosphere is what makes Merrimack activities more special than the stifling conformity of an administrative gathering.

I would also like to relate a learning experience for myself recently. I, like more than a few people, have had some negative feelings with regard to the Greek organizations. This is partly due to the overflow of information when something bad happens, and the trickle of information when these groups do something good. Not all of my opinions have changed, but I know from some of those who have pledged that the Greek organizations can make people closer than any of us outsiders realize. All groups could learn something from these bonds of friendship.

Anyway, I hope I have shown that there is a wide array of knowledge to be gained at Merrimack College that goes far beyond the classroom. And I hope all the departing seniors have taken advantage of all these sources of learning, be they in the confines of a social function or in the open air. For those students who have recently entered the school, it would seem that many of you came here to find new friends and experience a social atmosphere unlike any other that you have witnessed. Therefore, it makes sense to join organizations, not to overwhelm you with work, but to bounce your ideas and perspectives off of others, and also to absorb the opinions and points of view of those around you. This is how one grows at College, and this is what will be remembered long after these four years at Merrimack are history. These are times to remember only to the extent that one goes out of his or her way to become involved in activities that are unique, both in the classroom and in organizations and social functions. And that is how there are two sides to learning.

ACADEMICS

COOPERATIVE EDUCATION

Cooperative Education at Merrimack College is a five-year program in which Merrimack students gain the opportunity to alternate semesters of the academic study semesters of practical work experience. Co-op students, with the help of advisors and resources in the Office of Cooperative Education, find placements in local jobs for four or eight months at a stretch. Along the way, they accumulate skills and experience in their fields, essential elements in starting a career after graduation.

Admittedly, it's not always as easy as it sounds. Finding a job can be difficult, time consuming task; for example, the job held during the summer of 1994 can't come through until over a week after the end of the semester. Not every job is perfect either. However, I've learned as much through Co-op about what I don't want in my career as I've learned about what I do want. It's a lesson I'd rather learn now than a year after I graduate. Unfortunately, that is exactly what has happened to more than one friend of mine who didn't think a fifth year of college was worth the wait.

Of course, the benefits of full-time work during the college years is financial as well. Money accumulated during the Co-op work semester can be used to support students during the somewhat leaner school semesters, when study, not money, should be the first priority. Personally, I'm not sure whether I would still be attending Merrimack if I hadn't been able to draw from money I have earned from Co-op.

Despite an economic climate as difficult as ever and cutbacks at the college itself, the Co-op program at Merrimack continues to expand its reach. Every year, the office's staff spends time developing new contacts for students. In addition, Co-op opportunities are appearing in more fields now: the summer of '94 marked the first year that an English major successfully netted a full-time job through Merrimack's pilot Co-op program for arts and science students.

The pilot program was instrumental in the U.S.

Department of Education awarding Merrimack in June a one-year, "seed money grant to expand Co-op to Arts and Sciences. The total grant proposal which Co-op submitted to Washington is for a five year period.

Because Co-op won this grant, soon Merrimack students from almost every major will have the chance to elect Co-op. More staff will be hired and Merrimack will be able to reach out to a greater number of companies, representing a broad spectrum of careers.

To me, the benefits of Co-op seem obvious, which is one of the reasons that I am perplexed by the relatively small number of students involved. More than once, I've been asked incredulously how I can handle being in the Co-op program for five years. After everything I've gotten from it, I can't imagine how I'd handle being out of it.

THE ARGUS

This past year has been full of learning and growth here at the Argus. None of us are graduating this year, because we only started here at Merrimack in the fall of 1992. For the past year I have been editor-in-chief, watching and trying to make sure all of us at Merrimack are represented, especially student opinion. I have enjoyed working on the Argus and will continue next year. Christopher Cummings has been the Layout editor, we worked hard to improve the quality and the substance of the paper, making the papers layout look a lot better, and also writing the humor column and the Cell Life comics. Doug Farmer has been our Managing Editor this past year. He handled all the business of the paper, and started his own Philosophy column in which he explored great unanswered questions of mankind. Kristen Picarillo was advertising editor, contributing to the money aspect of the paper. She worked hard to gather ads and get the word out that ad space was available. Other's on our staff and frequent contributors were Dr. Kelley, Vice-President of Student Life, with Kelley's Corner, Sarah Davis, contributing time on proof reading and advertising, Christopher Marsella, doing everything and anything that was possibly needed, including tons of typing, Chris Castiglione, Co-op student first semester and writer for us second semester, Daniel J. McKinnon, with Ice's Corner, Karin Borgersen and her editorials from Villanova, Erin Warner, for her ideas and answers to student's questions. I would like to thank the staff and all those who contributed time, energy, and materials to the Argus over the past year, we really appreciated all the contributions.

One thing we have tried to accomplish this past year was to follow all that has happened at Merrimack very closely. We have worked closely with some of the seniors and now that they are graduating they take a little piece of the college with them, hopefully memories and not the furniture. We have all been through so much the past year... the layoffs, father Deegan's farewell, a new interim President, Jack's Place, renovations, and snow! We have been through a lot this year, but we got through it together, as students. The Argus will look back fondly at everything the students have accomplished this year. The Argus watched as students got together to put on events such as the Lemonheads or the On-Stager's productions of Harvey and The Apple Tree. Students got together to protest the layoffs, to go on Merrimack retreats or the Spring Break trip to Washington, D.C., and improve and energize Merrimack. The basic theme is that students got together to involve themselves with the college, and as the graduating class looks back, I hope they see all the improvements and changes that have been made, and know that they were a part of that. As we leave we take a little of the college with us. Those memories of friends, classes, and clubs are all a part of Merrimack that we made ourselves, our own contribution, and when we take those memories. We leave history and changes in their place. These are the times to remember, the times that we were together, one moment in history that will live forever as our college years at Merrimack.

ASSOCIATION FOR COMPUTING MACHINERY

Association for Computing Machinery is Merrimack's student chapter of the ACM, a society of students and professionals interested in computing. Our chapter of the ACM has several activities including attending and running programming contests. This year the ACM sent four members to Phoenix, Arizona for the ACM's big event where students and professionals got together to discuss computing issues. We were able to put on one of our best programming contest this year.

MERRIMACK DANCE CLUB

The Merrimack Dance Club has gotten off to a great start in only one short year! Providing fun and exercise for those interested in dance, it concept is one that I believe will gain recognition even more in the future. During our first year, we viewed a performance of the Nutcracker

Ballet in Boston which was organized by the MDC and sponsored by SGA and MAC; we preformed at over half a dozen of Merrimack's home basketball games during the half-time and celebrated Valentine's Day with a Pizza Party.

The Dance Team which consisted of 13 members was started by Nicole Davis, a sophomore at Merrimack. Our advisor was Susan Murphy who works in Admissions and who helped us tremendously. We all want to thank her for her support and hope that she will join us again next year. the choreography for our routine was developed by Dana Caporale, Vice-President, while Kristen Mannke serve as Secretary and Janice Patania, Treasurer. We encourage each and every student of Merrimack College to give our club a try and help us in making many more "Times To Remember."

M.O.R.E. the Merrimack Out Reach Experience, is a student-run retreat program. Since 1985, the M.O.R.E. Council, made up of four students, along with the help of Campus Ministry, plans six weekend retreats for every academic school year. A team of students retreat Leaders is chosen to give retreats a weekend that they can use to focus on themselves, their friends, their family and God.

The beautiful settings of either the mountains of the Berkshires or the beaches of Cape Cod help to take you away from the everyday stresses of the classrooms and homework and allow you to relax, meet new friends, and enjoy a weekend of surprises that you will never forget. You will undoubtedly be left with a smile on your face and warm fuzzy in your heart.

ALPHA DELTA GAMMA

NU PHI KAPPA

Nu Phi Kappa fraternity was founded in 1962. It is now Merrimack's largest and most active Greek organization. We are a very social organization who takes great pride in taking time out to serve our local community. This year NPK held its fourth annual volley-ball-a-thon which helps to support the Lazarus House in Lawrence. We also sponsored two blood drives with the local chapter of the American Red Cross and continued out Monday night bowling program with the folks at Fidelity House. We also sponsor several fund raising events such as the Valentine's Day flower sale, raffles, car washes, and of course off-campus social. Our socials always serve two purposes: 1) is to provide quality entertainment to the student body, and 2) is to contribute something back to the community.

This year will mark the second annual "Suit-case" dance. This event not only is a great social but all profits are donated to charity. NPK encourages all Greeks to join us in this great event. This year also marks some very important firsts for the fraternity. We held our first annual "Back-to-School" Bash and our first annual "Pig-Roast."

We would like to congratulate our two newest pledge classes Upsilon and Phi classes. And we would like to wish a warm and sincere goodbye to all the graduating seniors whose hard work has made NPK what it is today — the strongest Greek organization at Merrimack.

TAU KAPPA EPSILON

Founded in 1899, at Merrimack is driven by a strong brotherhood of over forty members, committed to serving the faculty, school, and the surrounding community. Tau Kappa Epsilon is the largest international fraternity with more than 300 chapters located in the United States and Canada. TKE

Within the past year, TKE has done just that. Some of the key philanthropy events last year include: special Olympics Basketball held in Haverhill, charity work at the Sutton Street Nursing Home, fund-raising for Unicef, and clothes drive for the needy.

TKE also has a strong commitment to the social aspects of the student body. A few social events include: the annual Red Carnation Ball, TKE's annual Kickin' Ass Bash, Halloween Party, and various other social events with other Greek organizations.

TKE at Merrimack has a diverse membership of brothers active in extra-curricular activities including: the SGA, the Alternative Voice, RA positions, and the Ski Club. We also have members that have participated in Varsity and intermural sports.

In the future, TKE will continue its tradition of leadership to further the growth of Greek life on Merrimack's Campus. The Brother of TKE wish the class of 1994 the best of luck!

THETA PHI ALPHA

We were established October 4, 1984 as Pi Theta Epsilon. We are happy to announce that on September 18, 1993 we officially became the Beta Psi chapter of Theta Phi Alpha. Still the largest and oldest sorority on campus, we are also the first and only national sorority here at Merrimack. Even though our name has changed, we have not. Pride, Trust, and Equality are still the values which continue to bond the sisters of Theta Phi Alpha.

The mission of Theta Phi alpha is to provide the opportunity for development and maintenance of social, education, and spiritual, leadership and philanthropic purposes and to provide lifelong bonds of friendship. The sisters of Theta Phi Alpha actively participant all over the campus, sharing with everyone the values of the sorority.

Theta Phi Alpha will miss the graduating members of the Beta Psi Chapter Class. If it was not for the determination of the seniors, we would not be as strong as we are today. Thank you for your friendship, sisterhood and memories that will last forever. We wish all of you the best of Luck. You will be missed greatly.

XI LAMBDA PSI

Xi Lambda Psi was founded in 1990 by five women who had bright hopes for the future. Today, the friendship and commitment that created XLP has touched the lives of many. The sisters of XLP pride ourselves on the individuality of our members, which enhance the wholeness of the group. Together, we aspire to make the college community a better place for all. Over the years, XLP has participated in the Big Brother/Big Sister Program of Greater Lawrence, raised money for the Christmas Kids of Lawrence, and donated time to the elderly housing at Prescott House in North Andover. This year,

XLP adopted an area of Route 114, committing to do all we can to keep our environment clean. XLP also sponsors several social events on campus, such as the Back to School Bash with the other Greek organizations. As our sisterhood continues to grow in number, we will continue to uphold the values upon which our sorority was founded.

The sisters of XLP wish a fond farewell to the graduating seniors and warmly welcome to the Zeta class. You are the future! We would also like to thank our advisor, Joan DeLano. Your guidance and friendship, we will always treasure.

Jewish-Christian Relations Week

History shows us, unfortunately, that humankind continues to make the same mistakes over and over again. One reason this is so is that most of the world remains largely ignorant of history and its implications for us all. We are often ashamed of times that we must remember. A particular example of this indifference would be the current movement - alarmingly active - to deny that the Holocaust, a massacre of millions of Jews, ever occurred, a force that seems to be taking root in both Europe and the United States. Even many who do not doubt this occurrence remain unaware of the tension that has existed between Jews and Christians at various points in history.

To combat such insensitivity, a panel met at Merrimack College on April 19, 1994 as part of Jewish-Christian Relations Week in a program entitled "Denial of the Holocaust." The panel consisted of Ms. Shiela Dectar, Director of the American Jewish Congress in New England; also, Dr. Lawrence Lowenthal, the Northeast Region Director of the American Jewish Committee; finally, Rev. Robert Bullock, Pastor of Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic Church in Sharon, Mass., as well as a board member of a program called "Facing History and Ourselves." All three had their own angles on the problem.

Ms. Dectar said that she was teaching at colleges in the late 1960s and early 1970s when she began receiving mail filled with "nonsense," stating that the Holocaust never occurred. Indeed, most European History books in the early 1970s "had about one paragraph on the Holocaust." Thus, children - a vital resource for making sure the evidence is not forgotten - were not taught of the killing in the disastrous light where it should be.

According to Dr. Lowenthal, one of the most deceptive aspects of Holocaust denial is that it is often disguised as scholarly research. Many would try to argue, for example, against the accuracy of "the German documents on which the Nuremberg trials were based... Two effective media for those who deny the Holocaust are computer bulletins and talk shows," said Dr. Lowenthal. True, most people would not take those sources seriously, but it is the ideas that fuel them that we must confront with as much education as possible.

Rev. Bullock offered his opinion that people who dismiss this calamity like being part of the intellectual discourse, because the more their beliefs are talked about, the more legitimacy they attain. He also drew a distinction between "Anti-Judaism, which is hating Jews for who they are, especially when they will not assimilate, and Anti-Semitism, which is hating Jews for fantastic reasons." As Padraic O'Hare said in comment, "Many teachings of Christianity have been totally foreign to the teachings of Rabbi Jesus, such as the idea that Christians replaced Jews in God's affection." "In the time of the Holocaust, 95% of teachers in Germany belonged to the Nazi teachers' association," said Rev. Bullock. Teachers must not be this submissive in the future. Jews were used as scapegoats in the past, but if the Holocaust is forgotten, all of us who stood by will be the only ones to blame.

Another event of Jewish-Christian Relations Week was part of the Rabbi Samuel J. Fox lecture series, featuring Krister Stendahl, a former bishop of Stockholm. The title of his talk was "Can The Victim Ever Trust The Victor?" which revolved around the tension between Jews and Christians throughout history. Mr. Stendahl pointed out that following the institutionalization of Christianity during the time of the Roman Emperor Constantine, Christians have held a wide array of leadership positions in the western world. Jews, on the other hand, have not gained such authority. They have gone the route of financial success or intellectual achievement to establish themselves. Strange how some have resented them for that, when these were the only paths open to them! The focus of the talk mirrored the concept of the week in that it emphasized the need for two groups that come from identical roots to understand each other.

CLOSING

MORE CO-OP...

HEY YOU!

Hi all! I never thought that when I entered Merrimack that I would be writing to the class of 1994 as Managing Editor of the Yearbook. It was a busier then expected year with lots of work and things to do. Little did I know of the amount of work that was going to go into producing the Yearbook. As I finish up my last page on my Macintosh at home I am relieved and proud of the work that this small group did in the yearbook tradition. What made the project much harder was the very small staff of Ken Farmer, a few other and I doing all the work. It was the quarter of what might be even considered a small staff. I find myself wondering if there will be a yearbook in the following year due to the fact that most of the others that worked on the yearbook with me were seniors I do not think it is possible for a book. If there was a staff to work with, the potential for the book is limitless. It will be a missed tradition and piece of history for the college to go yearbookless.

I would like to say thanks to Ken Farmer for his giving me the freedom and space to get my work done. I would like to thank my friends Dan "the Great ICE", Simon, and all my other friends for keeping me company on those late nights of working on the yearbook. I would like to thank my parents for the use of their car to allow me to meet Ken for meetings up at Merrimack. I also would like to thank Ed McGee at the Computer Store for use of his Macintosh computers, Laser Writer and help with upgrades for our computer. It is hard to remember all the people that did favors for me make my job better but thanks to them all.

Having not been a product of too many pranks that the typical Freshmen I look forward to the next year with hope and enthusiasm. There is no way to tell what time will bring, but to truly be able to move forward we have to remember these times. If I can find a group of dedicated students to work with me I look forward to turning out another yearbook. Take pride in yourself and your work, till next time...

Oh, by the way, "Hey You!" came to mind when I was having trouble thinking of a title. I have Pink Floyd and an incredible concert to thank for that.

Stephen Zerfas,
Managing Editor

MICHELLE MONIZ (PHOTOGRAPHY)

Did you know that, according to Reader's Digest, the odds of dying as a result of falling out of bed are over a million to one? Right now, it seems, I am facing similar odds in landing a decent job. Offers are not knocking down my door, and rejection letters practically arrive before I apply for the job. But nevertheless, I persevere; I send out an average of eight resumes per week. It has not been all bad. I hate to say it but it has been a "learning experience" for me—perhaps a much-needed one.

Back before the job-hunting began, I thought it would not be extremely difficult to find secure, full-time employment with benefits in a human service organization. Yet as the resumes went out and the "Thanks, but No Thanks" letters came in, I quickly realized that I was not alone in the 90s professional job search. My understanding parents often reiterated that a great number of graduates had since passed through the hallowed halls of a university in May—just like me—who were searching for employment—just like me. Thus supply definitely does not equal demand!

So I have learned to adjust. I have learned that despite the sometimes grim possibilities, I cannot lose sight of my long-term goals. So when it looks as if things are not working the way you would like, revise your standards: apply for part-time, odd-hour, low paying work if it means gaining experience. No one ever got a job because he previously had a great retirement package. Experience is what counts, so be willing to starve if it means soaking up some hands-on.

I keep telling myself that this hard work will be worth the time I have spent: short-term successes will equal a larger, long-term goal. And if it takes a "Generation X" job phase for me to achieve future success, I will consider that a "learning experience" too. "The trouble with success is that it always is disguised as hard work." And with all the practice at hard work I have been getting lately, success should soon seem as easy as falling off a bed!

Good luck to the Class of 1994 and thanks to all who have helped!

HEATHER ANN HUSSEY (PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR)

I Was Just Thinking...

It hardly seems like four years ago that I first came to Merrimack College for orientation. I can remember that hot Saturday in June as if it was yesterday. As I stood in Volpe Center waiting to have my college ID picture taken, I looked at the sea of unfamiliar faces that surrounded me and I wondered if I was going to make it there. Little did I know it then, but not only was I going to make it - I was going to grow to love it there.

And little did I know it, but the next time we would all be gathered there in the lobby of Volpe, we would be graduating. That time, not lost in a sea of unfamiliar faces, but at ease in the company of friends.

Somehow, by 1994, that unfamiliar campus we arrived at in 1990 had become a home away from home - a place where friendships were formed, things were learned, and memories were made. Each one of us has special things that we'll remember about Merrimack. It is those memories that we will have with us long after we've forgotten where we put our diplomas.

When we graduated, we ended a chapter in our lives. But the yearbook is our way of preserving the memories we made. Ten, twenty, thirty years down the road, we can open it up and remember our days spent at Merrimack. We'll be able to look back and remember our days spent at Merrimack. We'll be able to look back and remember those days with a smile.

There are a few people I'd like to thank for making my college years so special. Sarah Jane, Steve, Michelle, Lori and Lisa - thanks for your friendship and all the good times! Mark, thank you for your love, your support, and for always believing in me. And a special thanks to my family - I couldn't have done it without your love and encouragement.

I hope everyone enjoys the book. As photography editor, I did my best to capture some memorable moments. Congratulations and best wishes to the Class of 1994.

KENNETH J. FARMER (EDITOR-IN-CHIEF)

Here I am in the middle of July 1994 one week away from submitting the last of the 1994 Merrimackian. It has been a long process, although four months shorter than the production of the 1993 Yearbook. The 1993 Merrimackian was finally finished with the help of John Kurdzionak, Phil Braica and especially Guy Garon of Jostens publishing company. Now, back to the 1994 Merrimackian...

This year, I've been fortunate to have Stephen Zertas working with me on the layout. Heather Hussey served as Photography Editor and had Sarah Jane Walsh and Michelle Moniz working with her. If it wasn't for Michelle Moniz, the Residents section would have been only candids, no group shots. Guy Garon has been very helpful this year as well. I'd also like to again thank Jackie of Purdy Vantine studios for covering several events, the Baccalaureate Mass, Dinner and Commencement among them. Jackie also took most of the Sports candids. The entire Student Activities office, Fr. Gillin, Paul Moda and Carol Taylor, were very helpful, and I thank them. I've been able to draw on the experience I gained while working under past editors of the Yearbook, especially Robert Simpson and Heather Fleming. Thanks to Jim Seavey the Sports section does have some team photos. He also provided most of the Softball photos used. Congratulations to the NCAA Division 2 Softball Champions!

I would like to apologize for the lack of copy in the Yearbook and anything else that is missing. Due to our dwindling staff, what you see is all we could accomplish. If any of you in the classes of 1995, 96 or 97 don't like what you see, please join the Yearbook staff and help out! Even if you like what you see, you may still join the Yearbook staff and take part in a rewarding experience. My being out on co-op during the fall also prevented me from accomplishing much of anything until the spring. I would not have traded my co-op experience for anything, however. I learned a lot, especially people skills during my second eight month term, which will be with me for the rest of my life unlike the technical stuff which will be obsolete in five years. My co-op experience also provided connections which I used to get into Ohio State University with a Graduate Research Associateship.

I hope this book helps you remember your time here at Merrimack College.

Congratulations to the Class of 1994 and good luck in your future endeavors!

Sports candids with the exception of Softball which was provided by Jim Seavey of the Athletic department, who also provided the team photos,

Most of the Senior Portraits,

All of the color Senior Week photos as well as some of the black and white, all of the film used by our staff was provided by Purdy Vantine

The Clubs & Organizations photos were provided by members of the organizations themselves.

Heather Hussey (Photography Editor), Sara Jane Walsh and Michelle Moniz served as our staff photographers providing many of the pictures used throughout the book. A few pictures were taken by Stephen Zerfas (Layout/Managing Editor).

The aerial photos were taken by Eric Brown, Cara DeMarco and Steve Ehrmanntraut for the 1993 Merrimackian. They took so many of them we decided to use some this year as well.

Thanks again to Guy Garon of Jostens publishing company. He has provided a lot of valuable information and visited the Yearbook office frequently to pick up submissions.

THIS IS THE SEAL OF MERRIMACK COLLEGE

Its heraldry deeply symbolic...

Waving lines of blue and gold, representing the Merrimack River, Merru-asquam-ack, the place of swift water.... our college has already made tremendous strides in becoming a veritable fountainhead of Christian culture and advancement for all those entering its stream of activities.

"a trimount of the field charged with a cross fleurette," a part of the coat of arms of Archbishop Cushing, under whose patronage the College was established, representing Trimount, the original appellation of Boston.

a child's voice saying "tolle lege, tolle lege" (take up and read, take up and read) led to the conversion of St. Augustine and the dedication of his life to Christ.

"per scientiam ad sapientiam," (through knowledge to wisdom,) the ultimate purpose of Merrimack College . . . only through the valid combination of intellectual and spiritual knowledge of God and the world can we attain the fullness of wisdom.

College colors, blue for the fidelity of the Mother of God, and gold for the wisdom of the true Church form the chromatic basis of the seal of Merrimack College, devoted to Mary under the title of Our Mother of Good Counsel, and under her protection.
